Histograms & Other Facts

The first McDonald's was opened in the U.S. in 1955. Generally, countries geographically closer to the U.S. had McDonald's stores opened earlier; developed countries, such as European countries and their oversea territories, had McDonald's stores opened earlier and more McDonald's by density; capitalist countries had McDonald's stores opened earlier while countries having other economic systems had their first McDonald's around 1990s, a big decade of regime shifting. In conclusion, opening date is more correlated to distance and economic system, and store density is more correlated to development.
